Fleetguard Filters

Fleetguard Filters are class-leading filtration systems for many diverse applications, and Filter Services are the main suppliers of these products. We distribute throughout the UK, and we have a solid reputation for fast and efficient service and delivery.

Owners of industrial diesel engines, especially fleet operators, know how important engine filtration is; modern diesel engines are designed to provide optimum efficiency and performance. However, this efficiency comes with a trade-off; engines need to be serviced to a higher standard to increase their longevity and reliability. Filter systems are an important part of diesel maintenance: impurities in fuel and coolant can cause expensive repairs that result in vehicle downtime.

Fleet vehicles also rely on filtration throughout their systems; as well as filters for engine lubricants and air and coolant, diesel engines also require in-line fuel filters and hydraulic filters. Furthermore, engine filters are only the second line of defence against fuel impurities; fuel islands also require filtration to prevent impurities from entering the engine in the first place. This means that the choice of filter is critical.

As a fleet manager, you know that using quality replacement parts is key to keeping the fleet running, and this is why Fleetguard filters should be your first choice.

Why Choose Fleetguard Filters?

The manufacturer of Fleetguard filters is part of an engine manufacturer; rather than just designing aftermarket replacement parts for engines, our products are designed in conjunction with engine design and manufacture. This means that the filters are subject to rigorous testing during the engine development stage. As well as laboratory testing, the engines and filters are subject to field testing that simulates the conditions that they will face during their working lives.

This means that our filters are designed to perform well in real-world conditions. As Fleetguard are the only filter brand that are so closely aligned with engine development, the filters are simply the best in the world.

Their filters don't merely reach the standard of OEM equipment, they exceed it. This means if you run diesel engines as part of a fleet, you can rest assured that the filter systems will ensure reliability; Fleetguard filters are backed by a comprehensive warranty that ranks amongst one of the best in the world. This is owed to the fact that we take a systems approach to manufacturing; rather than just supplying parts, we are concerned with the maintenance cycle of diesel systems.

With over 8,300 products in stock, no matter what equipment you run, there will be a Fleetguard product to fit.
